Budget 2000

Highlands students, residents and businesses will benefit from province's initiatives, Hodgson says

ERIK MARTENSSON

Staff Reporter

Beyond the "up to $200" dividend cheque that all Ontario taxpayers are receiving from the provincial government, Haliburton-Victoria-Brock MPP Chris Hodgson was confident the budget presented last Tuesday will benefit Haliburton County.

"We're fiscally sounder and everyone shares in that," said Hodgson.

He cites the first consecutive balanced budgets since the '40s, increased spending on education by $197-million, an added $1.4-billion in new spending in health and a savings on taxes in several areas.

"The child-tax increase will help locally," he said in a telephone interview with The Echo immediately after his cabinet colleague, Ernie Eves, presented the budget. As part of the Ontario Child Care Supplement for Working Families, single-parent families will see an increase in the maximum annual benefit for each child under the age of seven. The increase of $210 will begin this coming July.

As well, "low-income tax reductions are a benefit for years to come," said Hodgson.

A cut in income taxes did not come in this year's budget, but a 20 per cent cut was promised for next year.

"We've exceeded all the targets," said Hodgson. "The Liberals said we'd never succeed. But you have to cut taxes, we have to be competitive."

He said the county should also benefit from a number of initiatives the budget has provided. Part of the $6-million earmarked for a special OPP team for snow trails and waterways, $1-billion for Ontario highways, $600-million for Ontario small town and rural development and $50 million over four years to promote tourism are "projects to apply for which should help our area".

Hodgson is confident that the county will be successful in getting the grants and funding. "We've been very successful in the past."

Global markets providing new clients, loggers told at woodlot conference

ERIK MARTENSSON

Staff Reporter

With a few adjustments, Haliburton County's forestry industry can continue to be economically viable, forestry experts said at the Spring Woodlot Conference at Haliburton Forest last Friday.

The fourth annual event - sponsored by the Haliburton Highlands Stewardship Council in partnership with the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve Ltd. and the University of Toronto Faculty of Forestry - discussed the importance of forestry as an economic component of the county, and how the county can compete on the global market.

Gary Bull of the University of British Columbia and the United Nations maintains that Haliburton County has an important role to play in the global forestry market.

"Logging of old growth forests is declining worldwide while the demand for products is increasing and that is of benefit to the local market."

Bull says political constraints and recreational pressures are high in the US and it has taken away their source of old-growth trees while they remain the largest market for forest products. That has heightened the demand for products produced in Haliburton and price trends are forecasted to go up.

Competition from plantations in South America and the US should also not be of concern.

SLAHM switches to voting by mail for election

Committee recommends Minden as municipality office location

ERIK MARTENSSON

Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at Thursday night's Snowdon, Lutterworth, Anson, Hindon and Minden (SLAHM) Transition Board meeting as part of the amalgamation process.

Mail In Voting

Voting by mail was accepted for the 2000 municipal election.

In a previous decision the board had determined to go with a traditional vote but revisited the resolution. Without any discussion, the mail in voting option was approved unanimously.

Committee reports

The Transition Board received reports from the various committees that had been struck to investigate the needs of amalgamation. The committees will continue to work on additions and alterations to the reports before they are brought back to the Transition Board for approval.

General Government/Office Committee

The committee recommended that all offices and departments be contained in one central municipal office in Minden.

Computer services are to be maintained at current levels using existing hardware and office equipment will also be pooled until there is an obvious surplus.

No leases are to be renewed unless necessary, and terms are to be kept to the end of 2000 if possible.

Budget Committee

The budget committee further reviewed the Transition Board's budget for the new municipality and completed the estimates for the expense side of the budget. The budget will be used to apply for restructuring funding from the province.

The previous budget expense total of just over $1,005,175 has risen to $1,098,375. While some estimated costs had fallen, an increase of $50,000 for the Office and Facility, $30,000 for Human Resources and an additional $15,000 for mail in voting brought the increase of $93,200.

The budget committee will complete the savings side of the budget for the next Transition Board meeting.

Environmental Committee

The committee feels amalgamation will provide savings with landfill sites. The committee reviewed the six landfill sites in the three townships and discovered a cost of $253,000 with an income of $63,300, leaving a total cost of $189,700 currently. The present systems and contracts are to be reviewed with the goal of joining collectively under one system to provide a savings for the new municipality.

Protection to Persons and Property Committee

The committee has reviewed municipal building permit fees and made recommendations to the board with some permits going up in price.

The committee also encouraged the existing municipalities to harmonize all of their bylaws before amalgamation so there are no surprises.

Human resources

The board unanimously chose to use Hicks, Morley, Hamilton, Stewart, Storie to help the board with human resources issues.

U-Links

U-Links extended its interest in maintaining their current partnership with Anson, Hindon and Minden with the new amalgamated municipality.

U-Links currently has a research centre in the Minden municipal office but it is still unknown if they will be able to continue using the space after amalgamation.

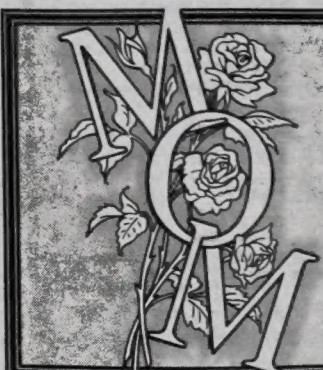

U-Links and Trent University, which has committed to another year of funding, are anxious to see a guaranteed space for their students.

"We need to find out where we may call home," said Trent professor John Wadland.

U-Links is anticipating the number of students taking part in the program will rise from the current 15 to between 20 and 30 students.

"We only see the program growing and developing," said U-Links chair Jim Blake.

The Transition Board decided to move the discussion to the properties committee, which will bring its recommendation back to the board.

French immersion is a go for Grades 1 and 2 this fall

ERIK MARTENSSON

Staff Reporter

Primary students in Haliburton County will be able to enroll in a French Immersion class starting in September at Stuart Baker Elementary School.

The Haliburton school is offering the first program of its kind in the county to facilitate French immersion at the Grade 1 and 2 level.

"We're pretty excited," says principal Debbie Wales. "It offers the students another opportunity."

Although it may be a long way for some, students from across the county will be bused to the school. Stuart Baker is in the process of hiring a teacher and already has a classroom space assigned for the coming school year.

The class will have a maximum of 25 students and it is anticipated to go until the students reach Grade 8.

"We'll have to see how the program develops," says Dale Robinson, Trillium Lakelands District School Board superintendent of schools. "We'll keep adding grades beyond Grade 2 as long as the numbers stay up."

"It's not for all students. It's good for strong auditory learners," notes Wales. However, she is confident that, "down the road it can open up employment and travel opportunities."

The French immersion students will have the same curriculum and expectations as regular students only their instruction will be in French instead of English. English will be introduced in Grade 3 and by Grade 7 the curriculum will be taught 50 per cent in English and 50 per cent in French so students will be able to fit into high school.

"For most, while they are initially behind, by Grade 7 and 8 they will have caught up to their peers in English," says Wales.

The goal of the program is to have students who are able to speak and write both English and French by the end of Grade 8.

After the amalgamation of the Victoria County, Haliburton County and Muskoka school boards two years ago, Haliburton was the only county that did not offer French immersion. The initiative for the program came from a request from a group of parents to offer the same programs that exist in Muskoka and Victoria.

"Parents view it as important for their children to be bilingual," says Robinson. "They want them to have the advantages that bilingualism can bring in this country."

Funding comes partially from a special provincial grant.

Giving life

There wasn't much of a crowd when Beth Johns arrived at the Haliburton Legion last Tuesday to donate blood (with the help of laboratory technologist Evelyn McCracken.) There were only 118 registrants, with 15 deferrals, well below the Canadian Blood Services' target of 170. Assisting to run the clinic were volunteers from St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Increased health spending beneficial to all: Hodgson into rural areas may help our area also," he said, referring to the new spending on health and the $4-million in free tuition to encourage medical students to practise in rural areas.

Speaking of the $500-million in funding for cancer research, Hodgson said "anyone who has a family member with cancer knows these are positive steps."

Critics of the budget say it leaves behind some members of society and point out there is no money for affordable housing.

"It was booked in '99 probably," Hodgson said of Haliburton County's situation.

There are also those who doubt the spending in education is enough.

"With the $101-million there will be more resources for quality in education, qualified teachers and special attention," argues Hodgson of the money earmarked for JK to Grade 3.

Attracting new businesses into Ontario was a priority for the government as there was large cuts in corporate taxes. Small businesses also received a cut from eight to four per cent.

"Everyone benefits with prosperity and growth. We're a pro-growth party," Hodgson says.

"But a lot more has to be done."

Gold for green:

Ministry of Natural Resources presents forest ecologist Brenda Chambers with prestigious award in recognition of her research work

NELIA RAPOSO

Staff Reporter

NELIA RAPOSO/Echo

Forest ecologist Brenda Chambers knew she wanted to work in the forest when she was 12. That's when she fell in love with wild bush flowers.

Now, all grown up, the 46-year-old's passion has been recognized by her peers at the Ministry of Natural Resources.

On April 28, the Haliburton County resident received a prestigious Gold award for world-class achievements in developing and transferring knowledge of Central Ontario forest ecosystems and their classification.

Chambers, a forest ecosystem classification program leader at the Ministry, says she was shocked when she got a telephone call early one morning, telling her she would win the award.

"I'm just one cog in the wheel - you can't do projects like this without a huge team behind you," Chambers says.

Part of that team, Chamber's family members, came from Toronto and

"I'm just one cog in the wheel - you can't do projects like this without a huge team behind you," Brenda Chambers says of the work involved in her two publications on forest systems. The Carnarvon resident is holding her Gold award for world-class achievements.

Belleville to see her accept the award. It was presented by Deputy Minister of Natural Resources Ron Vrancart at Robinson Place in Peterborough.

The award was in recognition of her publication Field Guide to Forest Ecosystems of Central Ontario. It helps people in her field make decisions for forest management planning, including understanding wildlife habitat and how to rehabilitate disturbed areas.

"The publication is geared to a technical audience. People have to have some expertise in order to understand it," Chambers said about her work which will be used by Ministry of Natural Resources staff.

Field Guide to Forest Ecosystems of Central Ontario is the culmination of 13 years of work.

"It takes quite a while to put together a 200-page book, as I found out," Chambers said.

A graduate of the University of Toronto, Chambers has an undergraduate degree in botany and a masters in forest ecology.

"It's nice to get paid to love what you do. I get paid to take pictures of wild flowers," Chambers said. "I think I am what I do. It doesn't even seem like work. It's what I do when I'm on vacation or volunteering."

Chambers is a member of Haliburton County committees such as Field Naturalists, Trails and Tours, and the Advisory Committee for the Environment.

She is also the author of Forest Plants in Central Ontario.

Alternatives to present justice system to be explored at May 10 workshop

Are you a young person, or know a young person involved in the Justice System?

How can we get the offender to understand the impact on the victim and then acknowledge the wrongness of his/her behaviour?

How can the community be involved in the process of holding offenders accountable?

How can we involve the victim in defining the harm done and how it might be repaired?

How can we involve the offender in repairing the harm?

How can the community be involved in repairing the harm?

These are some of the issues to be addressed at a second forum on Alternative Justice for Haliburton County, May 10, at 6:30 p.m. It's sponsored by the Committee Against Violence and Abuse (CAVA), hosted by Family Services, supported by Ontario Provincial Police, and held at St. George's Anglican Church, Haliburton.

The facilitator will be Raj Sud, the provincial anti-racism co-ordinator for the OPP.

For the past five years, Sud has been actively involved with restorative justice initiatives at the OPP. He is a trained mediator and qualified Accountability Conference Facilitator, having received his training directly from the principles of Transformative Justice Australia.

The purpose of this community education evening is to actively explore possible alternatives to our present justice system that are specific to Haliburton County.

Refreshments will be provided. Please RSVP by May 9, by calling 457-5345.

Bull says while they are successful and will not disappear, they deal with mainly low quality wood products.

"Forget managing for pulpwood; the growth and yields are too low and the prices will remain flat," says Bull. "Brazil can supply that market."

Instead, "manage for sawlogs and veneer logs - the demand and price is rising while supply is falling in other regions," he advises.

Kenton Martin, general manager and vice-president of Tembec's Huntsville division, agreed that there is a demand for hardwoods. He points out there is adaptability in even using low-grade hardwood in a variety of products from food additives, to clothing, to pharmaceuticals.

He also stresses that with low transportation costs, high-grade hardwood can be shipped cheaply and sold worldwide.

"Everyone touches the wood from Haliburton County," says Martin.

A shift away from traditional forestry will also help the county adapt to the modern forest products industry, says Lorne Johnson of the World Wildlife Fund.

"Canada has historically had a volume-based forestry and changes have to be made in order to sustain rural communities and the economy," he says.

Johnson says Canada can no longer compete in terms of volume and must change the way things have been done in the past. He cites employment declines due to mechanization in harvesting and mills, a forecasted decline in wood supply and reductions in the quality of wood due to past logging practices. However, industry still wants a higher return on their investment, the community wants more jobs, and the conservationists want a sustained economy with lower harvest levels.

Johnson favours a move from a quantity-based forestry to a quality-based forestry.

Quantity-based forestry is a large investment, is highly mechanized, has a lower job/volume ratio, uses low-quality species and has non-local control whereas quality-based forestry is a small to medium investment, is labour intensive, has a high job/volume ratio and is locally owned and controlled.

"The obstacles to quality-based forestry have to do with poor economies of scale," says Johnson.

Difficulty accessing wood supply, expensive equipment, a lack of expertise marketing products outside the region and difficulties obtaining financing are some of the problems. The solution, says Johnson, is a co-operative network of wood related businesses joining forces to achieve economies of scale. By pooling resources the networks can focus on securing wood supply, marketing products and sharing equipment.

"You do have alternatives beyond convincing a large mill to locate next door. There are options to create meaningful well-paying employment where the economic benefits stay in the community."

Keeping the economic benefits in the county also means educating society on the advantages of wood, says Peter Schlieffenbaum of Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve. He points out that forests have other values than just the trees. However, it is difficult to get people to see eye to eye on forestry since they can become divided into the wildlife/habitat/beauty camp vs. trees are to be harvested camp.

"Both of these can be brought together," says Schlieffenbaum. "It is up to us to turn this around."

He is concerned about the recent trend towards wood replacement products made of plastic and metal which environmentalists say saves trees.

"Wood fiber is the only sustainable product on the earth. We have to get this out to the public. Wood is the only sustainable resource."

Schlieffenbaum is concerned that if the message of wood being the world's only sustainable resource is not presented and carried through, the replacement products will take over and ruin the economics of the local forestry.

"Plastic takes away from our daily bread."

Forget managing for pulpwood; the growth and yields are too low and the prices will remain flat. Manage for sawlogs and veneer logs.

Cut locally, think globally

HALIBURTON COUNTY has always suffered from undue modesty. Our hills are not mountains, so they're not as pretty, let alone majestic. Our lakes are small, so they're not as grandly windswept as the ones in all those Group of Seven paintings. Our big events are still rather small so they're not as appealing. We even get surprised if our achievements are recognized by people outside the county.

It's therefore not surprising that we tend to undervalue our forests. Our trees aren't the regal old growth behemoths of British Columbia, and besides, they're simply everywhere so they can't be that special. And when a cottager arrives for the weekend or a visitor stays at a local resort, their economic impact is more visible than the financial gain every time a logging truck rolls by. We tend not to see the loggers in the woods, the mechanics who keep their equipment operational, the truckers, the mill workers and the firewood supplies busy at work.

To try to counter the public's lack of appreciation for their work, the county's logging industry commissioned a study a few years ago to compare the economic impact of logging and cottaging/tourism. The numbers told the tale: when you factor in the aesthetic value of our forests as a way of attracting people to the area, forestry provides a foundation for our local economy.

The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce recognizes this. As part of its marketing and economic development plan, funded in large part by the county, it plans to hire someone to promote and enhance the local forestry industry. It wants us to escape from being the simple "hewers of wood"; instead, if things are going to be done with our timber to add to its value, why can't we do it here?

County council also acknowledged the importance of our forestry industry by making the financial commitment to hire someone to enforce its new tree-cutting by-law, realizing that without enforcement, the by-law wasn't worth the tree that had been cut down to produce the paper it's written on. The by-law itself came into being when the threat of a clear-cut made people realize that we're not an isolated area, immune from the pressures to make as much money as possible and as quickly as possible.

Last Friday and Saturday's annual spring woodlot conference at Haliburton Forest gave a renewed boost to those who long have recognized the important role our forests can and do play in our economy. The guest speakers reminded participants that while they cut locally, they should think globally. We should no longer sell ourselves short when it comes to being part of the global production of wood products. What we have here in Haliburton County is valuable and it's possible to exploit that value while ensuring we have a sustainable supply of trees.

The Highlands' forestry industry is one of which, by and large, we should all be proud. Most loggers have a vested interest in ensuring they have trees to cut for decades to come and their dedication benefits the economy in two ways: it puts money in the pockets of local workers and businesses, and it ensures logging can take place side by side with tourism, with each side understanding and respecting the needs of the other.

First swim in Gull River

Falling for the great outdoors

IAM OFTEN STRUCK by an inexplicable desire to help young nimrods hone their outdoors skills to levels achieved by my cronies and I. Contrary to popular belief, this is not malicious. I generally like young outdoors people, even if, historically, they haven't shown respect for my vast, yet untapped talents. Not that I'm bitter. Heck, I could catch limits of fish too...

Being from the old school, I paid my dues. In fact, I was the guy in the corner, wearing the dunce cap, at the school of hard knocks. Years of fishing, hunting, and living in general disagreement with gravity and her minions, teaches a person just enough to be dangerous. Fortunately, I'm willing to share that.

I consulted with a few lesser known outdoor experts and asked about essential skills. Things that a youth needs to know - that could be put in print.

Mastering the art of the fall was universally chosen. Everyone, with the exception of Peg Leg McGee, who still stubbornly maintains that axe craft is more important, felt this was something that a budding woodsman needed to know.

Gravity is not just something that drops apples on slumbering eggheads. It is, quite often, surprisingly real. Without it you'd have to throw your retriever up a fair ways to pick up ducks. And I suppose you'd need an extra long leash as well. Gravity is the uncluttered canvas for the fall, something that separates veterans from rookies, as well as the occasional shoulder.

This is not to suggest that there is anything wrong with falling every few steps. Who among us hasn't done that? Show me a guy who can walk to his deer stand in the dark without tripping and I'll show you a guy with fresh batteries in his flashlight. What are the odds?

Anyone who has swallowed any amount of turf will tell you that this is never the case. A sure sign of an experienced woodsman are the burn marks on his thumb. These were caused by the wind proof matches that illuminated the way after the flashlight died.

No, falling is as natural as jab marks are to a playboy porcupine. Gravity will have its way with you every time. A skilled outdoorsman simply knows how to use that fact.

For example, one bitter December morning I stepped off the dock and was seized by a particularly powerful patch of gravity.

Simultaneously, my preferred destination, the canoe, decided to drift exactly 1.1 crotch-splitting lengths away. In a situation such as this a rookie might lose heart, realize the error of his/her ways, whimper, and splash. Amateurish, of course.

Having done this basic maneuver several hundred times, I used the incident to study bass habitat beneath the dock as well as the effects of hypothermia on the floundering hunter. My buddies were suitably impressed with this performance. And as soon as my head thawed, I held it justifiably high.

Similarly, falling out of a tree need not be as disastrous as trained medical professionals would have you believe. Broken branches and dead weight hitting the forest floor may even attract curious deer as long as the sobbing is kept to inaudible levels. Naturally, if you can unwrap the bow from around your neck the accompanying triple vision tends to give the deer a sporting chance.

I generally aim for the one in the middle. Surprisingly enough, precious little has been written on this.

So as we see, gravity only enhances the outdoors experience. Take heed and learn from this. I could write so much more. If only I could figure out which of these keyboards was real.

More than plants growing here

DAVE SWORE UNDER HIS BREATH. The black flies were ferocious this morning, even managing to crawl under the netting he had donned before going outside. Usually, at this time of year, Dave was able to get a few hours work in the garden if he started early. But not today. It was going to be a hot one, that was for sure. Already dampness had begun to press his t-shirt to his back and under his arms. He pushed on though, determined to prepare the soil for planting in a few weeks.

Dave loved gardening. Since his mid-twenties, when he first picked up a hoe and watched it bite into the dark earth of an old river bed, he had been hooked.

His family had been farmers, his grandparents, uncles, aunts and cousins. Not his own parents. Instead, his mother had taught at the parish school and his father repaired furnaces. But they lived on a few acres close to the farm where his father had been raised and Dave had always felt a connection to the land.

He never acted on it until he had married a city girl and moved halfway across the country. As the children started arriving, they bought a little bungalow with a big garden in the backyard. Dave had never looked back.

While his wife played with flowers ("played" was his word), Dave grew vegetables. Always first to be sowed were the peas, in beautifully straight lines marked with stakes and string for the peas to climb. Then spinach over where there was a little shade. Spinach didn't like too much sun. Beans, beets, carrots, cauliflowers, lettuce, onions, radishes, cucumbers, squash all went into the ground next, filling the large rectangle of earth in neat furrows and rounded mounds like a patchwork quilt.

Every time he finished a row or hill, Dave patted the earth to firm it and said a little prayer that everything would grow.

His pride were the tomatoes. Proudly staked, specially nourished, Dave's tomato plants produced large orbs that ripened when all his neighbours were cursing the greenness of their own. Although they asked Dave how he managed to produce such fine tomatoes, he guarded his garden secrets as closely as his deepest, most turbulent feelings.

Unfortunately, those other, non-garden secrets that Dave hid so far inside himself, began to stunt, then kill, other important parts of his life. His wife took the children and left, leaving her flower beds untended and choked with weeds. She had told Dave he needed to find someone he could talk to since it so obviously wasn't herself.

Dave had ranted and raved, threatened and pleaded but all to no avail. Not this time. She left quickly and quietly one day while he was at work. Dave's world fell apart for a while after that. But he kept up his garden. In fact, he expanded it.

A horticultural course was offered at the community college and Dave took it at night. The next year, he was teaching it. He started collecting gardening books and played with the idea of writing his own. But he didn't. There was no time. Between work, teaching at night and his garden, Dave was busy enough for two people.

And his garden kept growing. Eventually, his entire back and front yard was vegetable garden. He ended up giving most of it away. After all, there was only himself eating it. But that didn't matter. It was the planning, the planting and the tending of those small, growing things that gave Dave pleasure. The smell and feel of the soil as he pushed into it or cupped it in his hands brought him a peace like nothing else.

Sometimes, when he couldn't sleep, Dave would bring a folding chair, place it carefully between the rows of lettuce and just sit for a while. Then he felt connected to something, something calm and eternal. What more could a person want than that, he asked himself.

Who are these beautiful, smiling young women? Back in 1953, they were working at the Wigamog Inn. From left they are Beth (Pequegnat) Chambers from Kitchener (and now a Highlands cottager with her husband David), Eleanor (Owens) Cooper from Barrie (and now our West Guilford correspondent having joined the Cooper clan upon her marriage to Earl), Jane Blackstone of Toronto, Joyce Maldel of Fergus, Shirley Yarn of Hamilton and Otha Taylor of Toronto. Our thanks to Eleanor Cooper for sharing this week's Pic of the Past with us.

A new year in the park

by EV STATA,
Haliburton

Took a walk in the park today

First time this spring - 'twas a lovely day

The sun shone down on the view so quaint

A scene an artist would love to paint.

But how are things as we stroll down the mall?

Is everything the same as it was last fall?

Yes, there is that guy jogging down the lane

Thinks he'll get back his youth again.

Well, he might gain back a few extra years

But sooner or later old age appears!

Yes, there are some students making tracks

Toting those heavy packs on their backs.

The weight of knowledge is weighing them down

They can hardly lift their eyes off the ground.

Then there are young mothers, oh so proud

Hoping to show off their babes to a crowd.

And the geese are doing as they did before

Tho' I'm afraid there is a whole lot more;

And the ducks are doing the same old thing,

After all we know that now 'tis spring.

Say, there's my neighbour walking with her pal

She's a real nice sort of gal.

And my friend who's walking there with me

She's as sweet as she can be.

Well, with my friend, my neighbour and the sun shining down

Everything is back to normal in my hometown!

The new Hyland Crest

Residents review their new home

ERIK MARTENSSON

Staff Reporter

Residents of Hyland Crest are very happy as they adjust to their new surroundings. The residents, who moved into their new facilities on April 18, have a lot of praise for the new facilities and the hard-working staff.

"It's a beautiful place we have. There are beautiful windows and wonderful staff," says 96-year-old Lola Prentice.

"There are lots of improvements, it's such an up thing. I'm very happy here and I think my family is also happy with things," she adds.

Nellie Ranson, one of her neighbours, agrees. The 87-year-old Minden resident had been sharing a room but now has a private room complete with a bathroom. All the private rooms at the new facility have a private bath and a large window.

"I think it's lovely. It's clean, bright and I get a lot of sunshine. It's really an improvement," she says.

The residents are also impressed with heavy. They're very heavy for us to open."

Besides the two difficulties, she feels the designers did a good job with the layout of the building.

"It's easy to get around here."

She points out that white plastic handrails which help residents move around circle the building, and all the walls are rounded so there are no corners. Many of the rooms also have walls made of glass, which makes it easier for residents to find the room they are looking for.

Mrs. Ranson agrees that everything is nice but points out that the doors on the cupboard in her room pose her some problems. "The cupboards have very sharp edges that hurt your hands. Also, they close so fast."

But she is happy nonetheless and is looking forward to the landscaping being completed outside.

Mrs. Prentice, who is happy with the improvements, is sure that Hyland Crest will continue to be a good place to live.

"I've spent 20 years in Hyland Crest and I never regret a day of it."

How to build a faster mousetrap

JDH students learn that science projects can be fun

ERIK MARTENSSON
Staff Reporter

Grade 6 students from J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School were a success as they showed off their mousetrap car projects in Gravenhurst at the end of last month.

The students competed in a collaborative project called

Devotion to Motion with three other schools from the Trillium Lakelands District School Board.

The basis for the competition was "how the four different kinds of motion (linear, oscillating, reciprocating and rotational) are translated into a real life situation," said JDH teacher Ed Poropat.

Eight Grade 6 classes from Gravenhurst PS, Muskoka Beechgrove PS, Monck PS and JDH Elementary used the board's e-mail system to share ideas to design and construct miniature cars powered by mousetraps as part of the Grade 6 curriculum. The students were divided into groups and given the task of building a car for one of the four different challenges they were presented with. The students competed to see whose car could travel farthest, run fastest, predictably change direction most smoothly and come closest to a distance of exactly three metres.

Scott Lewis of JDH won the longest distance competition by a large margin.

"He was around the 12 meter mark while the closest competitor was around the 8 meter mark," said Poropat.

JDH student Jennifer Porter was closest to the three meters.

Poropat noted, "If she didn't land exactly at three meters she was within a centimeter or two".

Laura Stouffer of JDH wasn't far behind in the same competition.

The competition, held in the Gravenhurst PS gym, was used as a hands-on tool for practical learning and was shown to the other schools via web cameras.

"I think they had a good time and learned a lot from it," said Poropat.

To prepare for the competition, students first created a car with a paper chassis, paper straws for axles and paper wheels which they tested on ramps. They then moved on to cars with wooden chassis, plastic straws for axles and thick cardboard for wheels. The mousetrap was then added as the energy source.

"The goal was to start with a basic vehicle working up to a more complicated one," said Poropat.

In between all the steps the students were continually altering their cars based upon tests and studies.

Poropat was impressed with the hard work the students put into the project.

"They rose to the challenge and came up with some really terrific designs. They showed perseverance going back to modify their cars repeatedly. It was neat to watch"

High school's student environment team advances to provincial championships

NELIA RAPOSO

Staff Reporter

Five Haliburton Highlands Secondary School students have qualified to compete at a provincial Envirothon championship in Thunder Bay from May 10 to 14.

The team is to compete against 14 teams from across the province. Supervised by science teacher Derek Little, the group was one of three teams in the region to make it to the provincial level.

At the regional level, they competed against about 20 central Ontario region teams two weeks ago. The competition was held at the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre.

The fifth annual Envirothon tests students on forestry, aquatics, soils, wildlife and wetlands.

The OAC students involved are Jennifer Ferguson, Eileen Shim, Ainsley Hoare, Jason Scott and Adrian Rawlings.

The other two qualifying teams are from Peterborough and Hastings/Madoc. The international level of this competition will be held in Nova Scotia.

NELIA RAPOSO/Echo

Prophet vs. Profit

by MARTHA PERKINS

JUSTIN BAILEY'S VOICE has the same effect as a big, well-cushioned chair angled towards a crackling fireplace on a wet spring morning. It invites you into his world and makes you feel instantly at ease. There is comfort in it, solace even, and you want to settle back to enjoy the conversation that is sure to follow.

Professional singers aside, there are probably few examples of a person's voice determining his vocation, but Justin Bailey's voice makes him seem destined to be a Franciscan friar.

There's something in his voice that allows him to preach without sounding, well, preachy.

Franciscans, even those with the hint of a New England accent in their long, drawn out vowels, seem to be the Catholic faith's born story tellers. They have to be, since their calling takes them out among the people, people they don't know but with whom they hope to establish a quick rapport.

While a monk is "someone whose basic call is to go to a distant place, usually far away," a friar is someone who is "very much noted for taking people where they're at, working with the poor, with acts that are merciful and need a common touch," says Friar Bailey on one of those wet spring mornings, at home in the priest's kitchen in the basement of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic church.

About 15 times a year, he travels to various churches to lead retreats among people he's never met before. And yet through their brief time together, he hopes to help them enrich their faith and take it out into the broader world. This past Saturday brought him to Haliburton, where every night until he has to depart for his home base in Andover, Massachusetts on Wednesday, he will lead an hour-long exploration of what it means to believe in God.

"It's a wonderful thing to do," he says of his ability to answer his own personal calling while helping others. "I love to tell stories on the level where people are at. (Each evening will) focus on one of the aspects of church life, devotions that people are accustomed to, but to look deeper inside themselves so they can grow in faith, find God in more ways and take it outside the walls of the church and into the place where they live...

"We need to be able to understand the riches that are available in our faith life. My goal is to help people examine their faith life and to find out how God is present in them and through them..."

"People in love will make signs of love. People who are believers will make signs of belief and come together. The four walls of the church are meant to be taken out into all aspects of the community."

It's a way of life that's as enriching for him as the people he encounters.

In today's world of consumerism, a Franciscan friar, happily sworn to a life of simplicity, explores how to restore faith's role in building a better society

"The average person in the average parish may know of some very good people, but because I go everywhere, I see good people everywhere, people with human defects and shortcomings, but who really do their best to be good people."

Of course, because he is very much at one with this world, and not in a monk's sanctuary, he's also very much aware of why he thinks his message is necessary in today's climate of consumerism.

Dressed in a similar dark brown habit that adorns a statue of St. Anthony, who was also a Franciscan, Friar Bailey has eschewed wealth and the materialism it can beget. Asked about his choice of a simple life in an age which glorifies wealth, a simple life that both attracts and repels those who seek financial gain, he says it's important to speak out against materialism's false promises of happiness.

"Power and wealth are not what makes us happy," he says. "It's concern for other people, recognition of family values. It's important to stand against what's known as consumerism, the belief that we can only be happy by what we have..."

"There's always a tendency to think power and wealth are the most important things, because generally, the people who have them are the people who can afford to publicize them."

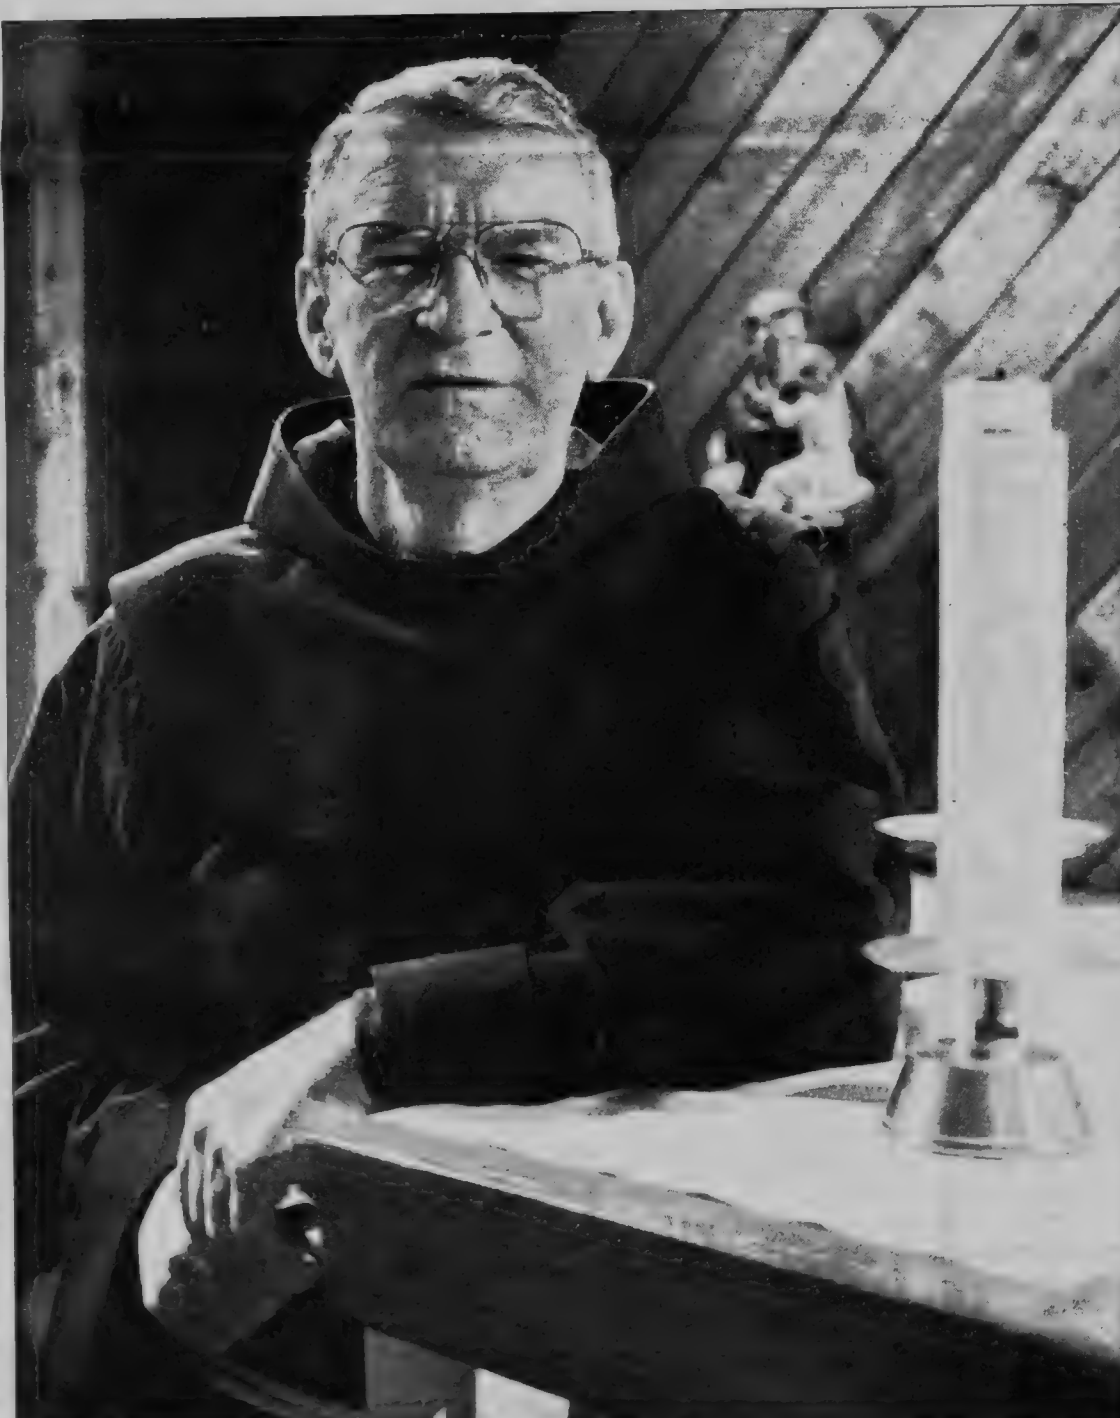

"There are people who say 'if I win the lottery or have 4,000 employees I'd be happy,' but everything truly human is available to everybody."

Consumerism can be very distracting if you're wealthy. The visible signs of prosperity can also distance the wealthy from others, making them think they don't need other people or the type of love a family might offer, he says. "This rat race is producing goods, but not good."

Profit is not a very reliable prophet and its lustre can be very ephemeral. "It doesn't take much more than a heartbeat to change someone, just something letting go, or some betrayal or accusation and everything is gone and they're back with the least of the least."

That said, it is not the wealth that is necessarily wrong, but the values one places with it. "I know some extremely wealthy people who use their wealth to help. These are not the rich condemned in the gospel; these are the people who recognize that they themselves depend on God and God has given them what they have so they can do good."

Everyone is welcome to join Friar Bailey at St. Anthony's for his final evening, tonight at 7:30.

"People in love will make signs of love. People who are believers will make signs of belief and come together. The four walls of the church are meant to be taken out into all aspects of the community," says Justin Bailey, a Franciscan friar who's leading a retreat at St. Anthony's Catholic Church

Honouring the "faithful workers"

Branch 129 Ladies Auxiliary praises its volunteers at annual honours and awards night

MP John O'Reilly presented certificates from Prime Minister Jean Chretien to Dorothy Stirrett and Anne McKay to welcome them into the Over 80 Club. Recipient Hazel Whittaker was unable to attend.

To honour the dedication of long-time volunteers, the Ladies Auxiliary created a new award, Honourary Life Membership. The first recipients of the special form of recognition were, from left, Betty Wise, Irene Higgins, Jen Crarey, Ruth Schell, Dorothy Iles and Nina Chambers.

There could be no Haliburton Legion without its Ladies Auxiliary, and it would be hard to imagine life in the village without them, too, said many of the guest speakers at Saturday night's honours and awards night for the hard-working volunteers.

"You've been great builders of this community," MP John O'Reilly said at the Legion dinner.

He gave special commendations, as well as a certificate from Prime Minister Jean Chretien and a new Canadian flag, to the three new inductees to the Over 80 Club - Anne McKay, Dorothy Stirrett and Hazel Whittaker-, praising them for their "wise counsel."

Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey applauded the tremendous amount of work done by the Auxiliary members, saying that as years go by, they are indispensable role models, "true examples of what can be done in this community."

"The Legion is an extremely important part of the community and we want it to continue for years to come," Fearrey said.

"Without you, I don't know where we'd be today," Branch 129 President Ed Pickard told the Auxiliary members. "We look forward to bigger and better things for the next year."

Ted Brandon also extended greetings and praise on behalf of MPP Chris Hodgson.

The evening was even more special because it marked the beginning of a new way of honouring those women who have done so much for the local branch. The first Honourary Life Memberships were presented to "faithful workers" Nina Chambers, Jen Crarey, Irene Higgins, Dorothy Iles, Ruth Schell and Betty Wise.

Over the years they have dedicated much time and talent on behalf of the Auxiliary and its various services, and the Auxiliary created the honour to make sure this dedication was suitably recognized.

Receiving special pins were:

Past President Medal and Pin: Verna Draper

1st Vice-President Bar: Isabel Craig

2nd Vice President Bar: Jutta Dombrowsky

Past Officer Medal and Executive Bar: Dianne

Fulton, Anne Marie Cochrane and Ethel MacDonald

10-year Service Pin: Robin Fletcher and Marjorie

Tibbitts

15-year Service Pin: Marney Chambers and Janet

Tice

20-year Service Pin: Isabel Jobin

30-year Service Pin: Norma Barnum

At the end of the evening, the Ladies Auxiliary demonstrated yet again one of the reasons why it is so valued in the community. President Verna Draper presented a cheque to Pickard for $2,000 to help pay for the upcoming elementary school track and field day. "This signifies our interest in the youth of the community," Draper said.

The importance of Cross-Training

weekly fitness tips

body rhythms

Lisa Box-Warburton

When you enter into an exercise program or if you are currently exercising, it is important to do different types, such as walking, biking, roller-blading, swimming, jogging and weight training.

If you cross-train, you will be working all the different muscle groups and strengthening your whole body, not just some parts. It also makes your workouts more interesting and fun.

Cross-training is beneficial for balance, co-ordination and endurance.

Sir Sandford Fleming students to pay more for tuition

Sir Sandford Fleming College's Board of Governor's recently approved a two percent increase in tuition for the 2000-2001 academic year, a $34 increase for full-time students for two semesters.

Tuition is currently $1,683 a year.

In addition to the increase in tuition, the college is increasing its information technology support fee and its student support service fee bringing them, or slightly above, the average for the college system. Requests from the student governments at the Frost Campus and the Sutherland

Campus for an increase in student association fees, the first in five years, were also approved. With ancillary fees, the cost of one year at the college will be $2,186 in the upcoming academic year compared to the current $2,078.

The tuition increase is needed as the college's operating costs continue to rise including inflationary costs and the costs of replacing or upgrading technology.

While the college was the beneficiary of a major capital grant under the provincial Superbuild program, operating grants have not kept pace with inflation or enrollment. The Association of Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology of Ontario says that colleges continue to see a long-term decline in per-student funding.

"Since 1990-91, colleges have serviced 33 percent more students with 42 percent less government funding."

Nursing degree

Terry Dance-Bennink, vice-president, academic, reported that the college is continuing to work with Trent University on a draft approval for a joint Bachelor of Science degree in nursing with a possible start date of the fall of 2001.

Program review

The results of a fall student survey conducted by the college were provided to the Board of Governors. Terry Dance-Bennink said students were surveyed on the 539 courses the college offers and 95 percent of those surveyed rate the courses as good to excellent with 66 percent of the students ranking the courses as excellent.

Growing in healthcare

For the past six months, these Personal Support Workers students have been working hard under the tutelage of Connie Wood, who, now that they are about to graduate, they would like to thank for her dedication, patience, understanding and enthusiasm.

The course was offered through Sir Sandford Fleming College in Haliburton and the graduating class is Crystal Bain, Kim Britton, Lisa Card, Sandra Fareell, Mandy Firmio, Valorie Gilbert, Ann Landon, Michelle Miscio, Angela Teasdale and Jennifer Tkach.

"Fun for the Whole Family"

Cribbage tourney is around the corner

Many things are happening and have yet still to happen around our Harcourt Town. A special welcome to our new restaurant owners. Algonquin Cookhouse has taken on not only a new name and face-lift but the cuisine will be very difficult to rival.

On April 15, the Harcourt Community Centre hosted another very successful dance following a wonderful dinner put on by the ladies of the Harcourt Community Centre for the Curling Club. There was a great turnout for the curling club dinner and presentations and a more than great turnout for the dance with approximately 110 people in attendance. A heartfelt thank you to all the people who supported us once again and a thank you to the families who included bringing their children to the dance. As my mother always said, "Families that play together, stay together."

On May 27, we have a really full day planned. Starting at 11 a.m., get your crib partner ready for our 5th Annual Cribbage Tournament. It is only $10 per person with registration at 11 a.m. and tournament to start at 12 noon. At 3 p.m., get another $10 out and get ready to sign up for our Euchre Tournament with start time of 4 p.m. To end this day, we are looking forward to the return of the band we had

community news —

at our New Year's Even 2000 evening and our very successful April 15th dance. Ken Kovach and his band, Classic Country, will be with us again starting at 9 p.m. Come out for a full day and evening entertainment.

We are very pleased to mention that Andy Hillo has now finished our Harcourt mural. We are very proud of our mural and would like to invite you to drop by and see this artistic masterpiece which demonstrates the heritage of Harcourt area and shows its natural beauty. Thank you, Andy, and all those who contributed to the cost.

We are also very pleased to welcome young children to our special day on Sunday, July 2, to help us celebrate Canada Day. Please call Cindy Baumhauer to enter your baseball team, 705-448-3624.

On July 8, 9 and 10, we welcome all to Harcourt Days 2000. Friday, July 8 will begin with a "Big Bingo" in the Community Hall beginning at 7 p.m. Doors will be open at 5:30. Big prize money.

Also, on Friday, July 8, will be the first night of our Adult Mixed Slo Pitch Baseball Tournament. The tournament will run over the weekend with finals on Sunday. Get your team ready. If you have a family of ball players then enter your "Family Team". For more information, call Valerie or Mel Smith at 705-448-3640. Saturday, July 9, our dance will start at 9 p.m. and we are pleased to have "Timber Tom and the Crosscuts" playing for us.

If you have any news you would like to share, please call me at 705-723-4202. The more news, the better. Thanks for your support!

He's a champion

Marian Markowski, baker, pastry chef and owner of Rachel's Bakery in Haliburton and Minden displays the medals he received at the Bakery Showcase 2000 competition put on by the Bakery Association of Canada. Over 2000 bakers and pastry chefs competed in nine different categories at the largest baking competition in Canada. Markowski placed first and received a Gold medal in the Bread and Rolls category with his creation entitled "Spring Fantasy". He also placed third and received a Bronze medal in the Showpieces category with "Let's Celebrate", shown above. Markowski has been in business in the Highlands for 11 years and wants to "put Haliburton on the map," when it comes to baking. He'd also like to pass on his knowledge to young people so "they have a future in the area". Markowski will be competing in the North American baking contest this September in Minneapolis.

First tea party at the new Hyland Crest is a success

We begin our news with the loss of Ted Madill, who died April 26 in his 91st year. Our condolences to his family and friends. Ted will be missed.

Our first tea party (April 27) in our new home was a lovely affair. It also was our birthday tea for the month of April. Our hosts were the parishioners of Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church in Minden. It was nice to see so many familiar faces. We were also fortunate to have Jack and Ruth Worthington here entertaining us.

The next afternoon, the Grandfathers were here for our happy hour. It was good to have them visiting with us and providing great music.

Over the weekend, we had some visitors in, had our nails prettied, enjoyed some ice cream, spent money on the treat wagon and joined the Norland Hillbillies for some great foot stompin' music. A good weekend.

Nellie Ranson, one of us reporters, told us of her granddaughter Lisa's recent wedding down in Nova Scotia. Lisa is now an Andrews. Nellie was telling us that Lisa used to work for Dr. Purc before she moved to Nova Scotia. Anyway, over the weekend, there was a reception for the newly married couple, at the Minden arena. Many attended to wish the couple all the best.

There was some sad news though, as Lisa's other grandmother, Marion Bates, passed away recently. Mrs. Bates was the mother of Marilyn Ranson (a staff member here). We wish to convey our sympathy to Marilyn and the family.

Our week began with some more sad news. Muriel Harrison died suddenly on Monday, May 1st, in her 93rd year. Muriel was one of the Roving Reporters from the very beginning and she will be sorely missed by us. Muriel liked to keep busy and enjoyed most activities. Our sympathy goes to her family and friends.

Roving Reporters

Vera Stevens has told us that

Kelly Harpley (a casual staff member) is going to finish the rug hooking that the late Walter Stevens had begun recently. We are so pleased that the last project of Walter's will be finished. It is of a Scottish piper and will be raffled at a later date. We send our thanks to Kelly for her generosity.

Rev. Wicks joined us on Tuesday, May 2, for our weekly chapel service. We appreciate the clergy who participate in the program.

The Norland Hillbillies were here for pub night. Also, joining us was Pearl Cowan and Joan Kernohan, our trusty volunteers. We had a great evening. Thanks.

Just a few more messages to pass on. Two more ladies are celebrating birthdays soon. Alice Rivers and Beatrice Britain both have a birthday on May 21. Enjoy your special day, ladies.

We said goodbye to Eunice Moore who has returned home. We hope she enjoyed her brief stay with us.

Our newest resident to welcome is Evelyn Henderson, and here on respite care is Ed McKelvey.

Guess that's it. Don't forget your mothers on Mother's Day, May 14. Time to pamper her. In the meantime, get out and enjoy this wonderful spring weather. It is definitely spring as we hear the mosquitoes and blackflies have emerged. Guess you'll have to dodge them pesky critters. Anyway, we're sure you can still enjoy this lovely season. Talk with you next week. Take care.

Juggling life's stresses

NELIA RAPOSO

Staff Reporter

It's no coincidence that the word stressed spelled backwards is desserts, said Kim Allen to a crowd of about 40 people at a mental health workshop at Haliburton Hospital on Tuesday.

The health educator from Peterborough led a workshop on identifying and combating stress.

To avoid stress, Allen said, our physical, mental, spiritual and emotional selves have to be stable. Stress is caused when we are knocked off our centre, when we are away from the place we are most comfortable.

But, when stress occurs it is our choice to let it go or harbour it. Whether it is good stress, such as getting a new job, or bad stress, such as a death in the family, Allen said the body reacts the same.

"Your body doesn't distinguish whether you're on a date or arguing over $3,000," said Allen. However, "we allow ourselves to recover quicker from good stress."

Fatigue, insomnia, colds, loss of appetite or ambition are some of the forms stress can take. Long-term stress is linked to illness, suicide, depression and loneliness.

The key to getting rid of stress, Allen said, is to know yourself. Listen to your body. If you have too much on your plate delegate some tasks to others.

"It's important to remember how much you can juggle and how much you can handle," Allen said.

To illustrate her point, Allen used her skills as a professional clown. She had three volunteers juggle colourful balls. One person juggled only one ball, the next had two, the third person had three balls to juggle.

The more balls a person has to juggle the harder it is to stay in touch will yourself and the community, Allen said as the person with three balls struggled to keep them all up.

The best cure for stress is to take time to do something you enjoy — and to laugh, Allen said.

Allen gave two volunteers big, red clown noses. Then she encouraged everyone to laugh a belly laugh, while wearing a clown nose herself.

The workshop was organized by Maureen Johnson, chairperson of Haliburton County Mental Health Planning Group.

Local singers are a success

community news —
wilberforce

Hilda Clark
448-2018

The Gentlemen of Song continue to enjoy opportunities to share their love of music. Friday, May 5 had them and their leaders Marg Jeske and Elsie Lewis taking part in a Variety Night at the Playhouse in Bancroft. On Sunday morning, they were welcomed to the Ingoldsby United Church service.

Also, on Friday evening, May 5, a Gospel Sing took place at the Lloyd Watson Centre. His Own team of singers and musicians from Haliburton/Ingoldsby areas joined Joyful Noise, mainly associated with the Reformed Church in Highland Grove, in a lively evening of praise. There is certainly an amazing number of talented performers in this county. The Gospel Sing and Bake Sale was a fundraiser for the Reformed Church to install a septic system.

Good news from the Wilberforce Heritage Guild. Mustard Plasters and Handcars has gone to press. Book launch is planned for Saturday, June 24 at the Outpost Museum.

Another upcoming event to mark on your calendar is the unveiling of the Millennium quilted banner on Sunday, June 11, 2000. Entitled "Local Lore" the banner will hang permanently in the Lloyd Watson Hall.

A note from Valerie Smith informs us that on Saturday, May 27, 2000, the Harcourt Community Centre will host their 5th Annual Cribbage Tournament beginning at 12 noon, followed by a Euchre Tournament at 4 p.m. There will be lunch and bar privileges. For more details call Valerie at 705-448-3640. Betty Hayward, 448-3351, and Ross Covert, 448-3196, are also good contacts for the cribbage section. The day ends with a dance at 9 p.m. with music by Country Classic.

Agnew's General Store is 'Celebratin' the end of the Renovatin' with a ribbon cutting and cake on Sunday, May 14. They invite you to drop in for cake and coffee. Ribbon cutting is at 1 p.m. All winter the builders and carpenters have been there, adding on, taking out walls. The store never closed. Amazingly, it was business as usual, as staff and customers learned new locations for various items. Best wishes to this hard working family who have maintained their business in the heart of the village for many years.

Bowling for dollars

It was fun, it was boisterous, and the recent bowlathon for the Haliburton Highlands Learning Centre was also a good boost for the largely volunteer agency. Twenty-eight bowlers in Camarvon and 26 bowlers in Minden, many of them young girls involved in Guiding, took part in the annual event, raising a total of $3,100 in pledges. Here, Jerry Corby aims for a strike while Bonnie Walling, Heather Scully, Elaine Roberts and Roberta Shilling cheer on a fellow bowler.

712 CARDS OF THANKS

THE FAMILY OF the late Oswald
Snell would like to thank everyone who gave us their support at a very emotional time in our lives. We will be a long time getting over this terrible loss. Oswald was a man of few words who gave to others without hesitation and never expected anything in return. We will truly miss his devoted love and generosity. We would like to thank all who gave flowers, memorial donations, cards, food, visits, phone calls and especially hugs. Thanks to Neil Walker for a long journey to be with his Mom over this tough time. Thanks to the U.C.W. ladies for a beautiful luncheon, Reverend Peter Walford-Davis for his words of comfort and choice of poems. Barry Cray and all the staff at Gordon A. Monk Funeral Services for the burden they lifted off each and every one of us with their guidance. Gordon Monk, for a very sincere eulogy. Oswald would be glad knowing you spoke of him as a true friend. Special thanks to Oswald's six nephews,
Mark and Jamie Walker, Michael Brohart, Leslie, Ralph Jr. and Larry Hutchinson who were the pallbearers. Thanks to all our families for your closeness, thoughts, prayers and company. Keep Os's memory in your hearts. Maxine Snell and family.
